Published Monthly by the INDIANA HISTORICAL BUREAU Indianapolis

COVER: It seemed appropriate to use a representation of the State Seal on this issue of the Bulletin. This rendition differs slightly from the present official one and appears in Jacob P. Dunn's Indiana and Indianans (volume I, p. 379). Dunn's interpretation describes "a sun rising on a new commonwealth, west of the mountains. . . . The woodman represented civilization subduing the wilderness; and the buffalo, which in the original was headed away from the sun, with tail down, going west, and not east, represented the primitive life retiring in that direction before the advance of civilization." In 1963 the Indiana General Assembly gave legal sanction to the design and provided an official description that varies somewhat from Dunn's.

THIS ISSUE is largely devoted to a listing of elected state officers. Such a listing has not been available and should prove useful to both students of Indiana history and librarians. The laborious task of assembling the information presented was begun by Miss Ann Turner and completed by Mrs. Shirley McCord, both Research Assistants in the Indiana Historical Bureau.

ELECTED OFFICERS OF THE STATE OF INDIANA

Under the 1816 Constitution the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor served for a three year term and were eligible to re-election. The Secretary, Auditor and Treasurer of State were elected by joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly for a three-year term. The first Constitution did not provide for either an Attorney-General or a Superintendent of Public Instruction. The office of Attorney-General was created by legislative act in 1821 and Harbin H. Moore of Corydon was elected by the General Assembly. The act establishing the office was repealed in 1825 on the ground that there was insufficient business to justify the expense. In the next year it was provided that the prosecutor of the fifth judicial district (which included Marion County) should act as Attorney-General. The present office of Attorney-General was established by the legislature in 1855. The second Constitution established the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction and provided for the popular election of the Secretary, Auditor and Treasurer of State.

1. At the beginning of the Fourth Session of the General Assembly, James Beggs was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate on December 6, 1819, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Christopher Harrison from the office of Lieutenant-Governor on December 17, 1818, which resulted from a dispute with Governor Jonathan Jennings. Boon was elected Lieutenant-Governor on December 8, 1819, thereby filling the chair of President of the Senate. On September 12, 1822, Boon became Governor to serve the unexpired term of Jennings who had resigned to serve in the United States Congress. Boon again became Lieutenant-Governor on December 4, 1822, and served in this capacity until January 30, 1824, when he resigned to become a candidate for Congress.
2. Jesse D. Bright resigned his position of Lieutenant-Governor upon his election to the United States Senate on December 6, 1845. The Indiana Senate elected Godlove S. Orth of Tippecanoe County to serve as President Pro Tem from December 12, 1845, until January 12, 1846, when he resigned. James G. Read was then elected President Pro Tem and served until December 9, 1846, when Paris C. Dunning was inaugurated as Lieutenant-Governor.
3. Paris C. Dunning served as Lieutenant-Governor until December 26, 1848, when he resigned to become Governor in place of James Whitcomb who was elected as a Senator of the United States. James G. Read was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate on December 29, 1848.
4. Abram A. Hammond served as Lieutenant-Governor until October 3, 1860, when Governor Ashbel P. Willard died, Hammond then assuming the duties of the Governor for the unexpired term.
5. Oliver P. Morton served as Lieutenant-Governor from January 14 to January 16, 1861, when Governor Henry S. Lane was elected a Senator of the United States, Morton completing the unexpired term of Governor. During this period, John R. Cravens served as acting Lieutenant-Governor from 1861 to 1863, and Paris C. Dunning served from 1863 to 1865.
6. Conrad Baker resigned his position of Lieutenant-Governor on January 23, 1867, the day following Governor Morton's election to the United States Senate, serving the unexpired term. Will Cumback was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate serving from January 24, 1867, to January 11, 1869, when he was elected Lieutenant-Governor.
7. Will Cumback resigned as Lieutenant-Governor upon his appointment as collector of Internal Revenue of the Fourth District March 27, 1871. George W. Friedley was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate and served in that capacity until January 13, 1873.
8. Isaac P. Gray, upon the death of Governor James D. Williams on November 20, 1880, assumed the duties of Governor until the expiration of the term. Frederick Viehe was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate serving from January 6 to January 10, 1881.
9. Mahlon D. Manson resigned the office of Lieutenant-Governor upon his appointment as collector of Internal Revenue for the Seventh District. Manson's term was not due to expire until January, 1889, but at the general election in November, 1886 both parties presented candidates for the office. Robert S. Robertson, Republican, was elected and sworn into office on January 10, 1887; the Democratic-controlled Senate repudiated him, declaring there was no vacancy and elected one of its own members, Alonzo G. Smith, as presiding officer. Smith served from January, 1887 to January, 1889 when Ira J. Chase was elected and inaugurated Lieutenant-Governor.

10. Ira J. Chase served as Lieutenant-Governor until November 23, 1891, when Governor Hovey died and Chase assumed the duties of the office of Governor for the remainder of the term. Francis M. Griffith was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate and served from January 5 to January 9, 1893, when Mortimer Nye was inaugurated Lieutenant-Governor.
11. Emmett F. Branch assumed the duties of Governor upon the resignation of Governor McCray April 29, 1924. James J. Nejdí was elected President Pro Tem of the Senate, serving from January 8 to January 12, 1925, when F. Harold Van Orman was inaugurated as Lieutenant-Governor.

INDIANA HISTORY WORKSHOP

The History Division of the Wabash Valley Supplementary Educational Center has just completed a one-week workshop on the campus of Indiana State University. Seventeen workshop participants were chosen from the eight counties being served by the Center. The program for the week was designed to enhance the teaching of Indiana and Midwestern History on both the intermediate and junior high school levels.

Guest speakers attending the workshop were Dr. William Clary, Executive Director of the Center; Dr. Richard Stephens and Dr. Herbert Rissler, ISU Consultants; Mrs. Dorothy Clark, Curator of the Vigo County Historical Society; Mrs. John Seville, President of the Parke County Historical Society; Mrs. Arthur Crary, President of the Clay County Historical Society; Dr. Robert Pace, ISU Professor of Archaeology; Mr. Ned Bush, Executive Vice-President of the Eugene V. Debs Foundation; Mr. William Baugh, authority on Spring Mill State Village; and Mr. Robert Montgomery, Director of the Indiana Junior Historical Society.

The cooperation of community agencies as well as individual workshop members contributed significantly to the success of the program. Those agencies who loaned museum items for display during the workshop are to be complimented for their foresight in visualizing the assistance such items can give to the teaching of history in the classroom. Clay, Parke, and Vermillion counties loaned numerous items. In addition, interested individuals and workshop members themselves increased the number of items on display.

During the workshop, members devised plans for utilizing such items in "teaching exhibits" to be used in their classrooms during the coming school year as a way of enriching the on-going program. It is anticipated that such museum pieces will help the students to comprehend the problems of the past and to develop a better appreciation of the present. Mrs. Nasser, Director of the History Division, will be a guest in the classrooms of selected workshop members, assisting them in using additional activities and materials in teaching Indiana and Midwestern History during the school year.

Other activities during the workshop were distribution of materials provided by the Indiana Historical Society and the Indiana Historical Bureau, discussion of the State of Indiana Curriculum Guide; evaluation of state adopted and supplementary text books; discussion of film, filmstrips, tapes, and records available on Indiana; a tour of the Wabash Valley Historical Museum and the Eugene V. Debs Home, both located in Terre Haute, and a discussion of possible sites for "teaching tours" for the students during the coming year.

The History Division of the WVSEC provided bus transportation for more than 3,500 students who toured the Wabash Valley Historical Museum in Terre Haute last spring. Many of these students also toured the Paul Dresser Birthplace and the Early Wheels Museum. A limited number of tours to the Wabash Valley Historical Museum will be available during the spring of 1968. The History Division plans to provide bus transportation for tours of individual counties and for tours to historical sites in Vincennes. In addition, tours to Spring Mill

State Park Village are also being planned. The student should have as much information as possible concerning the history of the site in advance of their tour. A slide or filmstrip series of Spring Mill Village which would be accompanied by a tape or script to be shown in the classroom is being considered.

Workshop member, Mrs. Anna Jane Libbert, Deming School, exhibited a mural made by her fourth grade students following their tour of Vigo County. In addition, packets of stories and pictures as well as models of historical sites made by the children were exhibited. Mrs. Libbert gave workshop members helpful suggestions on organizing a tour of their county. Workshop members from Parke and Vermillion Counties felt they would take their students on tours of their counties this fall. It is anticipated that other counties would do likewise in the future.

Mrs. Deloris Aydelotte shared with the group her collection of fossils gathered from near her home in Sullivan County. Mr. Donald Hymer described a teaching aid consisting of a peg-board map of Indiana which is electrically lighted and adaptable for various teaching purposes. An article about his project titled, "Teachable Moments," was published in the March-April issue of the Indiana Teacher magazine.

Wabash Valley Supplementary Education Center

The Wabash Valley Supplementary Educational Center and Indiana State University have performed a useful service in sponsoring this workshop. As more schools implement the curriculum recommendations of the State Department of Public Instruction with respect to a full year's instruction in Indiana history at the fourth grade level the desirability of additional workshops of this sort will be manifest.

Mrs. Anna Jane Libbert, Deming School, Vigo County, interprets the mural prepared by her fourth grade students after a tour of Vigo County.
